Rules as per latest .22LR rim fire rifle CHASA Sport Shooting Format. Competitors may use either standard or open class firearms as per regulation. The gong exercise part for the CHASA shoot will take place in the quarry.

All members shoot at their own target. Thus it is possible for you to submit a score to CHASA. The team's 4 targets will be scored by the range officers, no interaction of shooters and targets will take place. You may accompany the range officers to view your target. The 4 team member's individual targets will be scored and summed to arrive at the team score.

An additional 20 gong targets per shooter (5 gongs on 4 ranges) will be shot in the quarry at know distances... Targets will have to be shot in an instructed sequence with 1 shot per target. There will be a mix of gong sizes on each range. Make sure you know your 22LR's trajectory up to 100m. Time limits apply to this exercise.

Each shooter will require 40 cartridges to complete the CHASA plus the gong shoot.

In the event of a tied team score, each team will nominate an individual shooter to shoot off at the furthest target with a minimum of 5 shots, highest score wins.

In the event of a dispute the DRGC Committee will have the final and binding decision.
